Aims of Module

This module will equip students with the strategic and operational knowledge and skills required for resourcing, developing and managing talent within organisations in a global context.

Learning Outcomes for Module

On completion of this module, students are expected to be able to:

- 1 Evaluate and critically analyse the major features and impact of national and international employment markets on methods used by organisations to recruit, select and develop their talent.
- 2 To critically evaluate strategies, policies and methods for resourcing, managing and developing talent in organisations.
- 3 Initiate, develop, implement and evaluate strategies and interventions for resourcing and developing staff.
- 4 Develop and evaluate resourcing and talent management strategies for competitive advantage in major employment markets.
- 5 Manage learning, talent development, retirement, redundancy and dismissal practices fairly, efficiently and in accordance with legal, professional and ethical requirements.

Indicative Module Content

The module examines and explains those activities which are essential throughout the employment lifecycle, including resource planning, recruiting, managing and developing talent in organisations. This will include two associated strands; Resourcing and Talent Management, and Learning and Development. Specific topics will include the nature of work; changing labour markets; national and international labour trends; HR planning; flexible working; skills shortages; attracting, retaining, motivating and developing talent; terms and conditions of employment; employment legislation; fairness and diversity; work life balance; employee turnover; effective, professional and lawful release of employees from an organisation; retirement; succession planning; subcontracting; employer branding; learning within organisations; the business case for learning and development; learning theory; identification of learning needs; production of training plans; delivery methods and evaluation of training activities; government agendas and initiatives; the strategic role and impact of the Human Resource Development function; Learning and Development strategies, policies and procedures. A major focus of the module will be demonstrating how these two specialist areas work together to provide the organisation with a capable and motivated workforce.

Module Delivery

This module will be delivered using a variety of methods, focussing primarily on student centred learning. This will include lectures, workshops, tutorials and seminars, with a strong emphasis on student participation. Online students will achieve this through access to a range of interactive materials to facilitate learning, including online lectures, presentations and tutorials, plus synchronous and asynchronous activities, encompassing groupwork areas and discussion fora.
